EASTSIDE PROJECT

Youth Urban Farm Fellowship at A. Philip Randolph Heritage Park

This paid fellowship would give Eastside youth the opportunity to learn and work in the Urban Farm at A. Philip Randolph Heritage Park while building skills in urban agriculture, environmental stewardship, and community wellness. The program centers on three key elements:

- hands-on outdoor learning, through direct experience growing food and caring for the farm;
- paid workforce development, by providing youth with a stipend and real-world responsibility;
- and connection to community health, by helping participants explore the relationship between food, nature, and neighborhood well-being.
